HISTORICAL SOCIETY HEARS TALK ON PRESERVATION OF HISTORIC BUILDINGS

The members and guests of the Bethel Historical Society met at Garland Chapel Aug. 12 to hear Earle Shettleworth, Jr., of Portland Greater Landmarks speak on historic preservation of buildings, and to show very interesting slides of houses in Maine.

Mr. Shettleworth had taken several pictures of houses in Bethel and discussed their important architectural features. These included the Dr. Moses Mason house, and the Fred Hall, Katherine Ramsell and Margaret Quinn houses near the Common, also the brick store building at the corner of Broad and Main Streets; the Congregational and Methodist Churches, and the Tibbels home.

He reported the availability of Federal funds to match local funds, if a place receives designation on the roster of historically important buildings of which there are now several in Maine.

At a brief business meeting Vice President Edward Quinn, announced the selection of the following to serve as a nominating committee for officers to be elected at the monthly meeting to be held Sept. 2, at the Casco Bank meeting room: Mrs. Norman Mills, Mrs. Christine Grover, and Ernest Holt.

Attention is called to the painting donated by Faye Taylor to be awarded during Homecoming Week, Oct. 2 and 3. This is a scene in a rural area of Paris Hill, and through the courtesy of Harold Cluckey is on display at his pharmacy. Donations on the painting are being accepted at local stores and from society members up to the date that the painting is awarded.

Elizabeth Carter, chairman of the Homecoming Weekend reports that her committee was scheduled to meet at the Methodist Church dining room this Thursday afternoon, for further discussion and planning. Besides committee members people interested in other organizations to meet were also invited to this meeting.

It is hoped that all area residents will tell their friends and relatives away from Bethel to set aside this

COST OF LIVING COUNCIL DENIES PUBLIC EMPLOYEES' RAISES DURING 90-DAY FREEZE

The President's Cost of Living Council Wednesday ruled that state and local governmental employees may not get raises, even cost-of-living increases, during the 90-day wage-price freeze.

The council ruled also that teachers may receive raises during the freeze only if their contract period began before last Sunday, the day President Nixon announced his new economic policy.

Clearing up some other frequently asked questions, the Council said persons may receive raises for bona fide promotions, and that state and local tax rates also may rise during the freeze and that increased sales or excise taxes may be passed along to the consumer in the form of higher prices.

PRESIDENT INITIATES PROGRAM TO HELP NATION'S ECONOMY

President Nixon announced Sunday night that he is freezing all prices, wages and rents for at least 90 days. No prices or wages may exceed the level that prevailed in the month ended Aug. 14, 1971.

In addition he said he is inviting the world to devalue the dollar and is tacking an average surcharge of 10% on all imports and is recommending tax breaks for individuals and businesses.

The President also disclosed that, effective at once on the world market, the United States for the indefinite future will not buy gold at the $35-an-ounce price fixed in the early 1930s.

Of major importance to the nation's consumers was a Nixon recommendation that, effective Sunday, the 7¢ excise tax on automobiles be repealed so that the average price per American car would be reduced by $200. This legislation would have to be initiated in the House Ways and Means Committee and then be approved by the House and Senate.

The President also announced that there will be a $4.7 billion cut in federal spending in this fiscal year, achieved through a 5% cut in the number of federal jobholders and a six-month delay in the government pay increase due next Jan. 1.

To help make up the $4.7 billion, he said he is counting on deferring the effective date of general revenue sharing for three months and of his welfare reform program for a year.

S. A. D. 44 BOARD DISCUSSES TRANSPORTATION; APPROVE TEACHERS MONDAY EVENING

At their regular meeting at Telstar Regional High School on Monday evening of this week, the S. A. D. 44 board of directors authorized negotiation of a contract with Bernard Powers for the transportation of Newry pupils during the 1971-72 school year. The decision was reached following a lengthy discussion as to the relative merits of transporting the students in district-owned buses versus a contract carrier. The board's transportation committee was empowered to negotiate a contract with Mr. Powers in concert with the superintendent, Robert J. Gerardi, and Bernard Gatchell, supervisor of Buildings, grounds and transportation.

Board chairman John Brown, of Bethel, named Donald Stecher, Bethel; Harry Swan, Greenwood; Robert Davis, Newry, and Robert Day of Woodstock, to serve on the board's negotiating committee. The committee this year will have an "open" chair to be filled at various times by other members of the board. It was suggested by the chairman, and by Eddie Sawyer of Andover, BRIDGE A-BUILDING — During the past week and a half the Bethel highway crew has been working at the site of the Rabbit Road bridge in South Bethel. Concrete was poured for the abutment on the Route 26 end of the bridge (right above) Wednesday afternoon. The abutment on the left was poured last Friday. According to Bob Davis, Bethel road foreman, 48 yards of concrete have been used in the abutments. When completed the structure will have a planked traffic surface, supported by nine 16-inch steel girders, 27 feet long.

vice chairman and former board negotiator that Supt. Gerardi serve as negotiator during upcoming negotiations.

Brian Flynn, Telstar principal, reported on junior and senior high scheduling for the upcoming school year.

Mr. Gerardi informed the board that S. A. D. 44 was one of four Maine school districts cooperating with the University of Maine, Farmington, in attempting to secure a National Science Foundation grant of $53,796 for the retraining of elementary teachers in the science field. If funding is secured this program is

CONSERVATION SCHOOL'S FALL PROGRAM TO STRESS NEEDS OF JUNIOR HIGH STUDENTS

Ecology, conservation and environmental education will be stressed during a fall school program for junior high students at Maine's Conservation School in coming weeks.

School Director Marshall T. Wiebe said that there will be four, five-day resident programs starting Sept. 12, 20 and 27, and October 4.

The school, conducted at facilities on Bryant Pond in Oxford County, has a capacity of 50 students at each session. Wiebe said the popularity of the junior high program has prompted several business and civic groups such as banks, service clubs, Jaycees, etc. to sponsor groups of students.

One banking group has underwritten students for an entire session. School groups have undertaken to solicit local businesses for financing and these programs have met with good results.

The cost per pupil, for room, board, instruction, field trips and recreational extras for the whole week is $25. Teacher chaperones who accompany the groups will not be charged.

There are openings for individuals and groups in some of the sessions, and Wiebe said he would be happy to speak in behalf of any group attempting to obtain subscribers to underwrite pupil attendance.

The environmental education program will be conducted by student teachers from the University of Maine-Farmington under the guidance of the Conservation School staff.

The school is supported by the Conservation Education Foundation of Maine and the Maine Department of Inland Fisheries and Game.
